

3 CREDIT HOURS: SUMMER I - REMOTE LEARNING

ANTH 311 SEC 1 - KATE CENTELLAS

THE ANTHROPOLOGY OF PANDEMICS

Course Description

This course is designed to understand the history, politics, and social impact of pandemics. Designed in response to COVID-19, we analyze current events using historical and comparative approaches. Students will work collaboratively to understand the bio cultural causes, impact, and solutions to disease. Materials are almost all open-source, and include online materials (e.g. blog posts, simulations) open source collaborative syllabi, podcasts, board games/apps, and books available via kindle unlimited or kindle. This course is applicable for students in history, anthropology, pre-health, and anyone interested in a deeper understanding of the impact of disease on society and culture.

Prerequisites

24 Earned Credit Hours